

Icebreaker

(Pick one or two)

The Office Charades Icebreaker

Kick off your meetings by playing a few rounds of charades where the presenters can pick only office-related things. If you're rusty on your charades skills, here's a quick refresher:

- Pick a “presenter” to start things off.
- Ask the presenter to think of an office item or activity. They can announce the category, but that's the last time they can talk.
- Then have the presenter explain the item using only gestures. Any spoken words lead to an immediate disqualification.
- Laugh a lot. All charades manuals agree the game cannot be played without lots of laughter and yelling.

The Toilet Paper Icebreaker

- This icebreaker requires minimal effort and minimal funds. To play, pass a roll of toilet paper around and have everyone rip off how much they would usually use.
- Everyone will probably think you're crazy. When the toilet paper makes it all the way around the circle, have everyone count their squares.
- The number of squares each person took is the number of fun facts they have to reveal about themselves.

Find your pair

- Prepare word pairs, like salt and pepper, milk and honey, sail and wind etc.
- On separate pieces of paper. Tape one word to each person's back.
- People then have to walk around and ask yes or no questions to find out what their word is.
- Once they find out, they have to find their pair & by continuing to ask questions they have to learn 3 new things about the other.
- The best icebreakers are often fun icebreakers that encourage people to think in new ways – find your pair is a great ice breaker game for smaller groups too!